

ABSTRACT

A method of calibrating an endoscope including the steps of placing a calibration target in front of the endoscope, capturing an image frame of the calibration target by the endoscope, determining a pixel value for each pixel of the image frame, comparing each pixel value with a reference value and determining a compensation value for each pixel.